-The Congregational church and society in Willington contemplate erecting a new church edifice during the summer. This is a wise and judicious step, taken after much careful thought over the matter. The need of a more comfortable house of worship has long been felt. The building is old, and very uncomfortable in cold weather, and the audi ence room is on the second floor which neces sitates hard climbing for old people. It seems expedient, therefore, to build a small, out neat and tasty structure, and the people have almost unanimously determined to obey the command of the Lord as given in Haggai 1,8, fully believing, as we trust, the promise of the Lord in the latter clause of the verse. Weakness, whether constitutional or arising from disease the prospects of Oliver Johnson's new paper, or over fatigue, cannot be better compensated or the latest from the inquiry rooms, and Mr. Moody's last method. The only thing that would distinguish the meeting from a coliseum concert in jubilee time in Boston, is the number of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor, and Mr. It was the order of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor, when by a resort to this prime strengthen ing cerdial. The enfeebled invalid, the convalence of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor, which was a very proper of very poor, and wretched looking people who are some of very poor, when the some of very poor with the convalence of very poor, wretched looking people who are some of very poor with the convergence of very poor with old women, in garments barely decent to cover ing agent, having been delegated to the work them, past all decency of neatness, and bonnets barely rescued from the coal-hole, children with unkempt hair, and frowsy garments, brought by bending grandmothers, or drawn by curi osity into the free meeting; men evidently out of work, filthy, desponding and forlorn; the back streets and alleys sitting down beside ladies in furs and velvets, and spruce young men with flowers in their button-holes. It was a pitiful sight, and one longed that these poor souls, who had no earthly hope or comfort, might find some help and promise to lift them above their troubles. It would have been in sympathy with the master of ready developed the plans in a manner worthy such meetings, if one of those wise, devout gentle feeling, told these forlorn creatures that this unhappy lot was not all of existence furnish the historian of one hundred years for them, and whispered of inward help, that nence with the completest information that could help them drag through whatever was left for them to endure, without leaving them to feel bereft of God and man. But instead to the intemperate portion of his audience talking against time, like an insurance agen trying to win a customer. He was glib, peremptory, he did not suffer a second to be lost he told a number of stories, slapped his reformed drunkards on the back, with "I want you for president of the temperance league I'm going to start to-day," or "I want you for secretary." He made his usual point, that 'man was a failure," and with some very heavy singing, was off to his converts, without pausing to take breath. The singing, when Mr. Sankey does not take part, is very heavy, but it could hardly be otherwise, with four or five thousand untrained voices for a choir. The leader beats time before the audience, and exhorts them to sing up, and show that congregational singing is the grandest in agement after his mind. Mr. Sankey confines his exertions to singing a hymn at each meeting, when he feels like it, and doesn't the world, but he doesn't find great encourobject to shew his sufficiently good-looking face with the ill-tempered mouth behind the harmonium. Mr. Moody and his wife are the guests of Wm. E. Dodge, Jr., of the firm guests of wm. E. Dodge, Jr., of the firm Phelps, Dodge & Co., and his sons have lately been placed at one of the best schools on Fifth avenue, their expenses being defrayed by wealthy friends. 'The evangelists do not receive anything for their labors, beyond receive anything for their labors, beyond their expenses, but their friends take eare that they shall have as good a living as New York can give. The money made by the sale of hymn-books goes to the Young Men's Christian Association. It is said that the debt of this body has been extinguished, and the fund from the Sankey hymn-book will be available for charitable work. The space given this theme is not out of proportion to the interest it excites here. The fashionable talk is what is done at the Hippodrome, the newspaper squabbles, and the fashionable ef-forts for the centennial found. The women of New York have managed to get by the ears on this, as they always do when officered by the pert-nosed ambitious creatures whose names are forever in the newspapers, and who are far, very far from representing the best

The warm weather allows the greatest latitude in the matter of fashion. It is not uncommon to see thick jackets discarded, and the black silk suit worn with a lace fichu, or the bead fringe cape of last fall; again, suits in two shades of gray or brown debege, will be the first change for good, and with these are over-dresses of soft striped, basket woven or wool natte cloths, in large stripes of indefinite shading, or subdued colors. They will soon be laid aside for the chip hats, of every shade of tinted-white, pearl-white, pink-white, cream-white, to be trimmed with lace scarfs of the exact tint of the straw hat. Girls will be glad to hear that long polonaises and turbans, the old favorites in dress and

The Union League Club, which represents the unofficial end of the Republican party of this city, has felt impelled to express itself. It has resolved that no man should be nominated flour, groceries, and medicines, all of which they buy at prime cost, and 5,000 families are wholly, or in part, supplied therefrom. At this time 25,000 paragraps are living on this this time 25,000 persons are living on this ous, but there can be no doubt as to its meancharity, and there is not an unworthy person ing.
